INDIANA

CLIFTY FALLS STATE PARK

People have always been fascinated by scenes of geologic splendor, land which provides a witness to the awesome forces at work in nature. With its narrow valley, sheer cliffs, and plunging waterfalls, Clifty Falls State Park is such a place.

Located on state roads 56 and 62 just west of Madison, Indiana, Clifty Falls State Park was established in 1920 to preserve the falls on Clifty Creek, "a bit of original Indiana". Initially the park consisted of 617 acres, primarily the canyon and its waterfalls. In 1965 the park doubled in size when it acquired adjacent uplands from the Madison State Hospital. It now covers 1416 acres.

Clifty Falls was created during the Ice Age when the southward flowing waters of Clifty Creek met the newly formed Ohio River in a spectacular plunge, a waterfall that may have been two hundred feet high. The falls has since cut its way into bedrock to a point more than two miles north of its original position. Today, at a height of sixty feet, it continues the retreat upstream at a rate of one-quarter inch per year.

Because of its small watershed, the park's four major falls are at their best from December through June. July through November offer meager falls and the easiest hiking in Clifty Creek's spectacular stone bed.

In 1852 the Madison and Indianapolis Railroad began work on a route through the wilds of Clifty Canyon. Abandoned in bankruptcy, the project left extensive grade and stone work, scenic passage for present day foot trails. The most prominent remnant is a muddy, rock strewn, six-hundred foot tunnel, piercing the hillside beneath Oak Grove. It is passable on foot with flashlight.

The nature enthusiast will find a wealth of opportunity here. The park's 425 million year old shale and limestone rocks contain numerous marine fossils and are among the oldest bedrock exposures in Indiana. Beneath rugged cliffs spring wildflowers bloom in a quiet woodland air. Songbirds, hawks, and vultures stir in all seasons while deer and wild turkey inhabit the uplands with the occasional fox and weasel. Naturalist programs explore the park in year round field trips.

Clifty Inn, overlooking the Ohio valley and the historic river town of Madison, provides year round lodging and meeting facilities. And, Madison itself offers the visitor a rich step back in time along the Ohio's beautiful banks.

We believe you'll find each visit to Clifty Falls State Park a rewarding one. Enjoy it all year long!

THIS IS YOUR PARK

All visitors are expected to observe the following rules which are designed to fulfill the purpose for which state parks were established, namely, to preserve a primitive landscape in its natural condition for the use and enjoyment of the people.

Please let wild animals remain wild. Feeding of deer is prohibited. Feeding of all wild animals can result in harm to both animals and people. Animals who depend on handouts become a nuisance to park visitors and a danger to themselves. Please lock up all food and coolers inside cars or campers. Roll car windows up tightly.

	Boundary

There are presently no entry or exit points for Trail 2 at its north end near Clifty Falls. Hikers traveling up Trail 2 (Clifty Creek) to the falls observation area must return south to exit safely via one of the designated connecting trails. Off trail hiking in Indiana State Parks is ecologically damaging, frequently unsafe, and illegal. Violators will be prosecuted.

It should be noted that the Clifty Canyon Nature Preserve lies within the boundaries of the park. This 178 acre Nature Preserve is located in the northwest section of the park and has geological as well as ecological interests. Please be aware that this Nature Preserve should be left undisturbed and that only hiking is allowed inside the boundaries.

Short cuts cause erosion and can lead to dangerous areas. Please stay on designated trails.
